Thirteen miners and 4 wagons were captured 45 miles north of Fort Laramie, en route to the Black Hills, Friday last, and brought into fort on parole.

The plating mill of Bohm & Stahr, on Central street, Cincinnati, was partly destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The loss on the machinery and mill will be large.

By the capsizing of a row boat in the harbor of Toledo Tuesday morning, a young man named George Bennett and his sister, aged respectively 23 and 25 years, were drowned.

James O. Churchill and Lewis O. Martin have been appointed internal revenue gaugers for the First District of Missouri, and J. B. Wolf and Hugo Fisher storekeepers for the same district.

The opinion of the Attorney-General in the Chorpeneing claim will not be delivered for a week, a further extension of time having been granted to claimants to present evidence in their behalf.

A few gentlemen breakfasted yesterday with Mr. Graham, a former member of Parliament, and opened a subscription with $125,000 to build a Young Men's Christian Association hall at London.

About 3 o'clock yesterday Rudolph Manch, a machinist, who was engaged in repairing the boiler pumps in the press-room of the Leavenworth Times office, was instantly killed by the falling of an elevator from the fourth floor.

The machine and chair factory of Chester Baily, in Bedford, Ohio, was destroyed by fire Monday evening. Loss about $30,000, no insurance. Several persons were injured, and a large number thrown out of employment.

Alex. Caldwell, Lieut. Smith, of Leavenworth, and Plan Vonwert, of Holland, have returned from a trip to Central Kansas. They expect, with the aid of Dutch capitalists, to extend the Kansas Central railroad from Bolton to Denver.

The Brooklyn theater, about which so much talk was occasioned by the death of Mr. and Mrs. Conway, and the attempt of their daughters to retain its management, has been leased to Theo. Moss, business manager of Wallack's theater.

The only other indictment presented in the United States District Court at St. Louis, yesterday, was one against Col. John McFall for extortion in receiving illegal fees and other acts. He waived a formal arraignment and entered into a personal recognizance.

The French Assembly, after disposing of the budget, will take up the bill relative to the proposed tunnel between France and England. A private bill in reference to the same project has already passed the British House of Commons, and is now before the Lords.

The cotton mill operatives held a meeting at Oldham, England, and resolved to refuse the masters' terms fixing the rate of wages. Oldham alone contains 40,000 operatives. The workmen in the surrounding districts are in an unsettled state. A general rupture in Lancashire may be looked for.

The Missouri and Kansas excursionists over the Toledo, Wabash & Western Railroad arrived at Toledo last night on their return from the Islands of Lake Erie, where they have been spending the past three days. They have enjoyed a most delightful trip, and return well satisfied with the excursion.

Ex-Father Gerdeemann, of Philadelphia, who was recently tried by a jury, came near being mobbed last night in the upper section of the city. His presence being discovered in a beer saloon, it was soon noised around, and a large crowd collecting, boots and yells greeted the ex-priest. A squad of police visited the scene, rescued Gerdeemann and dispersed the mob.

The Grand Jury of the United States Court at Oshkosh have found three indictments against Samuel Lewis, Jacob and Max Bindskof. The first is for omitting to make entries in book, making false entries and destroying books; second, for felony in removing and failing to destroy stamps; the third is for conspiracy to defraud the revenue. Other indictments have been found, but they are kept secret.

The Postmaster General yesterday confessed to the use of the Government three certified checks amounting to $16,892, deposited according to law by a contractor, a failing contractor, accompanying his bid on route 30,096. This is the first instance in which the Department has confiscated such checks. The Postmaster General has also commenced a suit against the bondsmen of over forty failing mail contractors.

Nothing whatever has been learned to corroborate the story of the Donaldson balloon having landed in the vicinity of South Haven, Michigan. The operator at that point knew nothing of it, it seems, last night, and communication with that section is severed today. The story is generally admitted. Rewards to the amount of $700 have been offered for the recovery of the bodies of the aeronauts, and tugs are now hunting the lake for them.

A petition will be filed in the Cincinnati Probate Court to-day for the impeachment of Mayor Johnson. He is charged with various acts of omission and commission, chief of which are his efforts to control the actions of the police at the last election contrary to the law then in force, when he was a candidate for re-election. Two of the parties signing the petition were members of the police force at the time, but have since been removed, it is asserted, without cause.

A council of delegates from all the Presbyterian churches in Christendom met at Regent Square, London, yesterday and opened the session. Many representatives of the American and Canadian churches were present. The object of the council is to demonstrate the unity of belief among Protestants, arrange mission work, concentrate the influence of the church upon educational and social reforms, and to organize resistance to infidelity and religious intolerance.

Notice has been posted on the door of the Ashland German Banking Company, at Pottsville, Pennsylvania, stating that the directors deem it desirable to keep the bank closed until a thorough investigation can be had of the affairs of the alleged absconding cashier. The notice created great excitement, hundreds of workmen, depositors in the concern, immediately leaving their work to ascertain the condition of affairs. The amount of the defalcation is not yet known. The poor German people are the principal sufferers.

Ed. Merriweather, a colored Mississippi politician, was killed Monday night by a negro named Jefferson, who escaped. Ed. had gone to the house of his wife, from whom he had been separated, and where a party of negroes had assembled, and began abusing her. A quarrel ensued between him and his brother John, who interfered, which resulted in Ed.'s knocking John down and choking him. While thus engaged Lizzie Patterson gave Jefferson a pistol and told him to shoot Ed., which he did through the head, killing him instantly. Jefferson then fled.

The substance of John D. Lee's confession concerning the Mountain Meadow massacre, is that thirty Mormons, with the assistance of a large number of Indians, decoyed the emigrants from their entrenchment by a flag of truce, that all were murdered except seven children, that the deed was done in the order of the leader of the Mormon church, that he took the news of the massacre to Brigham Young, who despised the transaction and said it would bring disaster on the Mormon people. The statement of Lee, so far as known, only confirms previous reports in regard to the massacre.

The Captains of the British, Irish and Scotch regiments, in a letter to the Council, express the hope that the various suggestions for a match will lead not only to a contest between the teams of the United States and the United Kingdom hereafter, but will insure an annual competition at Wimbledon for the championship of the world. McKenna and Pollock will not shoot in the Irish eight for the Elcho challenge shield; Greenhill and William Rigby have been substituted. This change weakens the Irish team. Col. Bodine, of the American team, is suffering from a bad cold. He visited Wimbledon yesterday, but was in no condition to shoot.

L. Union Belge, of Chicago, an organization of French artists, has passed resolutions that the money in the hands of E. D. McGann, of New York, which was a donation of the French artists to Chicago about the time of the great fire, be returned now to the sufferers by the great floods in France. It will be remembered that a considerable number of artists in France at the time mentioned, each gave a picture to be brought to this country and sold for the benefit of Chicago. The sale took place some time ago and the amount realized was about $30,000. The money has not been called for, and it is thought that this was a fitting opportunity to return it.

Gov. Kellogg has addressed a letter to the Attorney-General enclosing a report of experts appointed by him to examine into the Auditor's office, in which he says: "The investigations that have taken place before both the Civil and Criminal Courts, and the investigation and report of the State examiners disclose gross culpability on the part of other persons whose acts have injured the State, and for years have cast discredit on the Government. I especially call your attention to the record in this respect, and request that you will immediately take prompt measures to bring to justice all those who have been guilty of defrauding the State, as disclosed by these inquiries."

The July returns to the Department of Agriculture show that the average in corn is about eight per cent greater than last year. New England has increased her average about 11 per cent, and the Pacific States about 1 per cent. All the great corn growing regions have increased their average. The middle States 3 per cent, South Atlantic States 3, Gulf States 10, inland Southern States 12, States north of Ohio 7, west of Mississippi 14. The condition of the crop is below the average in New England and the South Atlantic States, the minimum condition, 2, being in Rhode Island, Florida and Alabama are also below the average, but the other Gulf States and the inland Southern States are above the maximum, 12, being in Mississippi. All the other States, except Missouri, 103, are below the average, and the minimum condition, 82, being in Wisconsin.

Some good financial reading will be found in another column.

The abolition of the German printing swindle would save the people money.

WILLIAM ALLEN's late speech is not a great success as a key-note or campaign opener.

THE Terre Haute papers have gone into spasms of propriety over the articles about Senator Morton and Governor Hendricks. If such little things start these modest and long suffering creatures, what would become of them in case both these gentlemen become candidates for the Presidency? They would explode with fright, as other rabbits are said to do.

REV. MR. SMITH, the Indian Commissioner, does not successfully answer Prof. Marsh's charges against the Red Cloud Agency, and his actions show that he is a fit companion of Delano's. There is a very general belief that corruption exists in the Indian Department, and Smith evidently does not want to have the matter probed. The defence that Saville, the agent, was recommended by the Episcopal church is no defence at all.

WHY don't the Ohio Republicans get Senator Morton to come over and blow a key-note for them? They invited him two years ago, and it will be remembered that his key-note consisted chiefly in laudations of the Republican party for the universal prosperity it had bestowed. In about six weeks the panic struck the country like a cyclone, and since then there hasn't been so much talk of the prosperity produced by the Republicans. The Senator's key-notes rather sank in public estimation, but he might retrieve himself if allowed another chance. It would be an intensely interesting spectacle to see him retelling the rag money heresies of Bill Allen and the Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE Journal publishes long estimates of the cost of the State printing according to its bids and the Sentinel's, taking the work of the last two years as a basis. We have not verified its computations, but it claims that its prices are over $2,000 less than the Sentinel's. As we said the other day the manner of letting this contract has been very suspicious. The bids were not opened when they were advertised to be, and when they were, they were opened privately and given to a clerk to figure up on at his leisure, instead of the contract being awarded then, as per agreement. Then after the award was made, no one was permitted to see the figures for four days, under the plea that the contract must first be signed. This part will bear examination as well as the bids themselves. We are loth to believe that the State officers would lend themselves to any scheme to benefit a private organization at the expense of the people, and shall take interest in hearing their story, if they choose to tell any, but the whole matter has a suspicious look, and can neither be laughed off nor treated with indifference. If the award has been a fair one it easily can be substantiated; if it has not the people will know the reason and spot the perpetrators. There must be no trifling in this business. We do not care who gets the contract, but we do care very much whether the people are robbed.

THERE is every probability that within five years passengers will go from Indianapolis to New York in twenty-four hours at the farthest. Less than ten years ago the ordinary time was thirty-four and often thirty-six hours. When this was cut down to thirty-one it was considered a great thing, and now the best time is twenty-eight hours. This difference is made east of Pittsburgh by the use of a train which stops but four times between that place and New York, a distance of nearly 450 miles, and if the same plan was adopted west of Pittsburgh a gain of several hours could be made. It is the frequent stopping which reduces time so much. Constant running at a fair rate of speed soon traverses a long distance, while the time lost in stopping and starting naturally cuts down very fast running. The New York Herald has established a fast train to Saratoga and Niagara on Sunday, which makes an average rate of about forty miles an hour. It goes from New York to Niagara in less than twelve hours. On Monday morning we received a copy of the Herald of Sunday, twelve hours earlier than it usually comes, and this with comparatively slow time west of Buffalo. The same speed through would have brought that paper to this city by midnight of Sunday, twenty-one and a half hours from New York, and this by the northern route, which is a little longer than the central one. These facts show what can be done, and it is only a question of time when much faster time will be made on trunk lines. In Great Britain fifty miles an hour is a common rate, and our best built lines can certainly run ten miles slower than that with as much regard for safety as now prevails.

THE more the circumstances attending Donaldson's balloon ascension are considered, the more probability there seems of his being alive. The balloon was an excellent one, according to most testimony; he carried a remarkably heavy quantity of ballast, nine hundred pounds; the balloon had stood for a couple of days, and had absorbed nearly as much moisture as it could; he ascended when the barometer was very low and the air very heavy, which would make it easier to go high; when seen early in the evening he was floating along the lake at rapid speed, and suddenly shot up to an immense distance. It is probable that he meditated a trip across the lake, his previous ascensions at Chicago having been very short ones; in fact, the care he took to have the car covered so that it would float shows this. All these things put together give good reason for the theory that he floated along until the storm approached, when he threw out ballast and mounted high in the air. Then he met with some strong current, such as La Mountain and others have met with and described—such as carried the former with Wise and Hyde, of the St. Louis Republican, from St. Louis to northeastern New York and over Lake Ontario—this carried the aeronauts north or northeast into the pineries of Michigan, or into the trackless Canadian wilds north of Lake Michigan, or northeast of Lake Huron. It would require but a few hours in such a gale, blowing seventy or eighty miles an hour, to take them a long distance from civilization. The fact that the wind on the Lake blew south amounts to nothing. Above the area of storm it may have been bright and clear, as it often is, and this region may have been reached by the balloon. But even if it got into the storm, as long as it kept above water it must have been safe. It offered no resistance whatever and the wind would carry it where it listed. Only in case of dragging in the water would it have been torn to pieces. As for the lightning striking it, that is hardly probable, if not impossible. But taking all the circumstances into consideration and remembering Donaldson's experience and wonderful coolness and presence of mind in time of danger, we have strong hopes that he and his companion are alive. At any rate we shall not believe to the contrary for even a month unless the balloon or their bodies are found.

THE WABASH CANAL.

A correspondent yesterday expressed a good deal of surprise at what he calls "the stupidity and lack of State pride" which "permits this great thoroughfare, the only means of free and cheap transportation in the State, to pass from under their control into the hands of private parties, who will destroy it as a means of transportation altogether, and otherwise manage it in a manner adverse to the public interests, as surely as such a disposition is consummated." As it is not improbable that "Native Hoosier" represents a considerable number of citizens, it may be well to say that the State has no power to prevent such a disposition of the canal as may be ordered by the Courts in the enforcement of the rights of those who own its stock. Her real interest went from her thirty years ago, to pay a debt which she couldn't escape and couldn't pay, at that time, in any other way. A trust was made of it, to be sure, so that the legal title did not formally pass to the creditors, but our correspondent does not need to be told that an honest trust contains the vitals and value of the trust property. The canal went from us anyhow. Our inability to interfere with the order of Judge Drummond began a generation ago. With the relations of the trustees and the "cestuis qui trust" the State had little concern, except as the political sovereigns of the territory traversed by the property. "Why was not the State represented in the proceedings" at Chicago? asks the correspondent. She was. One of the trustees, Mr. Hinton, is a representative of the State. He was elected by the Legislature of 1873. She is concluded, therefore, by being a party in the case; by having put away her real interest long ago; and by having enacted as a provision of the constitution, in 1873, that the canal never should be resumed by her. Allowing that any interest remained in her after the trust transfer of 1846, which could resist the power of the stockholders otherwise than by paying cash and interest for the debt discharged by the canal, it was voluntarily "frozen out," killed by the constitutional amendment which prohibited the assumption of the canal. That was a clear abandonment of all proprietary right, if any remained. The value of the work as a means of transportation is not exaggerated by the correspondent. It is so great that Governor Baker, in a form of the amendment he drew up, put in a provision that the State should never take back the canal except by order of the people made in a popular election, and his reason was that time and the changes of business might make it worth while to buy it back, even at the $20,000,000 it would have cost at the time. But this prudent protection of contingent interests was struck out of the amendatory proposition as it passed, and our abandonment of the Wabash & Erie canal was made absolute. We do not yet clearly comprehend what the effect of the court's order will be, and it is possible it may not force a sale and a divestment of the trust in which the State still has a representative.

WHAT DID HE DO WITH IT.

The Revenue Detention of Louisville—Only a Few Thousands' Worth of Property Discovered—A Confederate Suspected.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]
The Revenue officials completed, last night, their investigation of the defalcation in the United States Collector's office. The discrepancy in Jackson's accounts is $22,900, 16 1/2-3, and this amount Collector Buckner will have to make good to the Government. Jackson has destroyed several records and has not accurately ascertained when his defalcation first commenced, and the exact dates of his series of peculations, but it is the opinion of Col. Hunt and his assistants that he commenced to steal immediately after his appointment as deputy collector, but the larger part of the money stolen was taken by him last February. About that time tobacco dealers believed that the tax on tobacco would be shortly raised by Congress, and there was a great rush to the Collector's office to buy stamps before the threatened bill was passed. So large an amount of money was paid in at this time that Jackson could account for many thousands of dollars without suspicion, unless upon a rigid examination of his accounts; and all the evidences go to show that it was during this month that the largest steals were made by him.

As before stated, active search has been made for visible property owned by the defaulter, but the investigation has only a few thousand dollars have yet been discovered. In the assessor's books he is assessed for two pieces of property—a piece of ground 28 1/2 feet by 200 feet on Chestnut, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, valued at $1,140, and 60 feet by 145 feet of ground on West-sixth street, between Grayson and Walnut streets, valued at $600, making a total of $1,740. The latter piece of ground was purchased by Jackson in 1869, but was never assessed until this year. The reason assigned by Jackson for his failure to report the property, when questioned by one of the assistant assessors, was that he did not know that it was in the city limits. At the time he purchased the property it was not in the city limits, but the boundaries of the city were soon after enlarged. It is also stated that he purchased some property in Parkland, in 1871, for over $2,000, which he deeded to his wife. The property owned by him on Chestnut street was purchased by him during the past two years.

This property, with his interest in the shoe store on Market street, seems the only evidence of what he has done with the stolen money. Our reporter can not find that he has had any transactions through the banks, and it is certainly hoped by every one he who knows and sympathizes with Collector Buckner, the principal sufferer by Jackson's crime, that there will enough assets be found to lessen the great loss he has sustained. As it is, he or his sureties will be obliged to pay nearly $23,000 to the Government. The Collector is obliged to give two bonds, one of $100,000 as receiving agent, and one of $50,000 as disbursing agent. In the event of Collector Buckner's inability to pay the amount of the defalcation, his sureties on the first bond will be called upon to make good the amount. We understand that the sureties on both bonds are wealthy citizens of Louisville.

Mrs. Jackson has been greatly prostrated by her husband's sudden death, and has not yet been told of the discovery of the defalcation. The newspapers and other means of bringing the matter to her knowledge have been carefully kept away from her.

Dr. Kastenbine commenced the analysis of the contents of Jackson's stomach yesterday. It will take some time to determine whether there is any poison in it or not. What the insurance companies will do about the insurance on Jackson's life will depend upon the result of this analysis.

THE PLUMBER'S REVENGE.

A Legend of Madison Avenue.

CANTO I.—THE DEATH-BED OATH.
It was some thirty years ago,
An evening calm and red,
When a gold-haired stripling stood beside
His father's dying bed.
"Tend my son," the sick man said,
"Till my dying day."
And sweet sternal vengeance to
The accursed race of Jones.
For why? Just nineteen years ago
A girl sat by my side,
With cheek of rose and breast of snow,
My peevish, promised bride.
A viper by the name of Jones
Came in between us twain;
With honeyed words he stole away
My loved Belinda Jane.
For he was rich and I was poor,
And pacts all are stupid
Who feign the God of Love is not
Capricious, but stupid.
Perchance "tis well; for, had I wed
That maid of dark-brown curls,
I had not been, or been, instead
Of boy, a pair of girls.
Now, listen to me, Walter Smith:
He to you plumes his bold,
And thou would'st ease my dying pang,
His pretence be enrolled.
For Jones has houses many on
The fashionable Madison Avenue,
And thou, perchance, may'st be called in
To see to the repairs.
Think on thy father's ravished love,
Recall thy father's ill,
Remember this, the death-bed oath,
Then make out Jones's bills!"

CANTO II.—THE YOUNG AVENGER.
Young Walter 's to the plumber gone,
A boy with smut on nose;
Furnace and carpet-sack in hand,
On the journeyman he goes.
Now grown a journeyman himself,
In grimy hand he grips
A candle-end, and heeth the sink
Explores the frozen pipes.
His furnace portable he lights
With smoking wads of tow,
Papers, and smiles to see within
The pot the solder fuse.
He gives his fist: "They are froze
Down about sixteen feet;
If you want water ere July,
You must dig up the street."
"Fractical Plumber," now is he,
As witnesseth his sign,
And ready 's to undertake
Repairs in any line.
One day a housemaid, as he sat
One day a housemaid, as he sat
Came crying: "Ho, Sir Smith, Sir Smith,
Sir Jones's pipes is froze!
He girt his apron round his loins,
His tools took from the shelf,
And to the journeyman he said,
"I'll see to this myself."
"World," said he, as he drew the bill,
"My father was alive!
10 lb. of solder at 10c.,
$1.75."

CANTO III.—THE TRAITOR'S DOOM.
The Jones had houses many on
The avenues and squares,
And hired the young avenger, Smith,
To see to the repairs.
And Smith put face to in, and cooks,
And meters, eke, and taps,
Connections, 't joints, sewer-pipes,
Basins and water-traps;
He tore the walls, and ripped the floors
To reach the pipes beyond,
And excavations in the street,
And 'neath the sidewalk yawned:
And daily, as he entered up
Tons of mud in his boots,
The plumber's face wore a serene
And retrospective look.
And Jones would wring his hands and cry:
"Woe, woe, and utter woe!
Ah, me! that taxes should be so high
And rents should be so low!
Then he would give the Smith the house
As installment on account
Of his repairs, and notes of hand
For the rest of the amount."

CANTO IV.—AVENGED AT LAST.
Now, Smith had been for a dozen years
In the practical plumbing line,
And the mills of Smith didn't grind slow,
And they ground extremely fine.
Terrace by terrace, house by house,
The lands of Jones he took,
And heavier still the balance was
Writ in that fatal book.
At last no property nor cash
Had he, so he did sell,
And the avenging plumber locked
Him up in Ludlow jail.
His hearers crowd he be sought
For mercy in his need:
"Nay, nay, no mercy; lie and rot,"
Quoth he, "in jail thou'lt feed,
For I have sworn avenged to be
On thee, thy kin and kind;
Rememberest thou Belinda Jane?
I am the son of Smith!"
—(G. T. Lanigan, in the New York World.)

The greater this life is made, the more probable is the heaven beyond it. Every one that builds up the beauty of this life is making more visible the steps to heaven, making heaven more probable. No one ever infers heaven from the desert of Sahara. Indeed, travelling over that great solitude, it is easy for the heart to feel that the earth is a burnt-up, a dying-out star, like those that have fallen from heaven. It is when the traveller strikes the great zones of human life, and sees the magnificence of verdure and bloom, and the grand works of man in Europe and America, that his soul believes in God and in heaven.—[Prof. David Swing.]

To Examine Candidates for Licenses to Preach—G. De La Matry, P. McNutt and J. B. McClain.

An essay on future punishment was read by Rev. Levi Wright, in which the writer maintained that justice demands a separation of the righteous and wicked in the future world, and that the punishment of the wicked begins at the great judgment day.

A protracted discussion followed the reading of this paper, the members being evenly divided in opinion as to the length of time elapsing between death and judgment.

The Conference reassembled in the evening, and were addressed by Rev. J. B. Sparks on the priestly office of Christ.

TO-DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.
Conference met at 9 o'clock this morning, and devoted the first half hour to devotional exercises.

"How to develop and utilize the latent talent of the membership of the church" was the subject of a well prepared essay by Rev. Dr. J. A. McCoy, which was afterward discussed at length by several members of the Conference.

The program provided for an essay from Rev. B. F. Morgan, on the best method of conducting social meetings, but in the necessary absence of that gentleman the conference proceeded to other business.

The names of J. A. C. McCoy, John Webster Cunoon, Abraham Wells, S. P. Hofer and John Macklin, were recommended to be received into the annual conference, and the last mentioned was also recommended to be ordained as deacon. The report of C. R. Tuttle for license as local preacher was granted, while that of W. T. Smith was withdrawn for satisfactory reasons.

A communication from the Official Board of Woodlawn M. E. Church was received and without debate was referred to the committee on Missions for further disposition. The document referred to set forth that the opinion of the Board the establishment of the Southside or any other mission in close proximity to their own church would be detrimental to the interest of all concerned, and would engender jealousy and strife among the members of the respective churches.

In view of these facts the Board asked the Conference to take such action in the premises as would prevent the trouble anticipated. At the suggestion of Dr. Holliday, it was resolved that at the annual examination of candidates they be asked whether they have pursued the course of studies as recommended by the Conference yesterday. Rev. Dr. Watson was requested to repeat his essay to-morrow on the "Mystic Moments of the Bible," which was first read before the Ministerial Association.

The program for this afternoon provided for essays from Rev. G. H. McLaughlin and S. C. Noble, and this evening Dr. Bayless preached from the text, "What think ye of Christ? Whose son is he?"

The Conference will hold through to-morrow.

Attempted Outrage.
Yesterday afternoon a tramp was accommodated with a meal of victuals at the residence of Mr. Hay, 27 College avenue, and in taking his leave he enticed a little daughter of Mr. H.'s to follow him a short distance, when he forcibly seized her and attempted to violate her person. The loud screams of the child attracted the attention of its parents, both of whom gave chase to the fellow, but failed to secure him. A minute description of the man was at once communicated to the police, and at a late hour last night a fellow answering to the name of James McGuire was arrested by Dehovan and Lynch, and held on suspicion of being the party who attempted the outrage. An additional charge of drunk was preferred against him.

Provoke.
John Murray went to the residence of a Mrs. Ann Manly, on South Meridian street, at a late hour last night, and in the character of the house demanded admittance in a very demonstrative manner. For all of which he was arrested to-day and will have a hearing to-morrow on a charge of provoke.
